Assessment Process

Ngā Kaiako have assessed the tamariki through running records. Running record results are obtained when a tamaiti reads a text to the kaiako and the kaiako uses an established marking method to record the reading behaviours. They record all the words correctly recognised, self corrections and errors. The result will tell the Kaiako if the text is too difficult, at the right instructional level or if it is an independent level. I have asked Kaiako to record each tamaiti's expected instructional level in the grid above.

Whaea Wairere said there is a strong focus on deepening comprehension and extending vocabulary throughout the strand and this will continue. She wants to ensure that while children may be able to decode to a high level they are also able to comprehend what is being read and understand the contexts and deeper meanings within texts.
